Principals Message

As part of our ongoing professional development, our faculty is currently reading Boundaries with Kids by Dr. Henry Cloud and Dr. John Townsend. The book provides valuable insight into helping children develop healthy boundaries, personal responsibility, self-control, and an understanding of the natural consequences of their choices.

As educators, we recognize that helping children grow in these areas is a partnership between home and school. The ideas presented in this book have given our faculty meaningful opportunities to reflect on how we can encourage our students to take responsibility for their actions while also providing them with the guidance, support, and grace they need to grow.

We wanted to share this resource with you because we believe its content may also be valuable for parents as you navigate the many opportunities and challenges that come with raising children. While every family and child is unique, the book offers practical ideas and thoughtful perspectives that may be helpful in fostering independence, responsibility, and healthy decision-making at home.

Thank you for your continued partnership with our school and for the important role you play in the lives of your children.

Memory Verse for October 5-9

Proverbs 3:5-6

Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways submit to him, and he will make your paths straight.

Next week's memory verse includes an instruction from the Lord as well as a promise. The main point is to trust in the Lord's wisdom, instead of what we might think is right. This flows from acknowledging that God is wiser than we are, that He knows more than we know, even about ourselves.

The promise is that when we trust in the Lord, lean on His Word and seek to follow it, He will be at work in our lives to lead us in the right way.

For discussion:

- When is it hard to trust in the Lord and His instructions?
- How can you grow in trusting the Lord?
